This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE

The preparation of this subject-index is due to a growing interest in the history of the Pacific Northwest, especially in those states carved out of that vast and long-disputed territory known for so many years as the "Oregon country," and in the more newly acquired territory of Alaska. This interest and the increasing number of calls for documents relating to the history of these two sections of the United States, have emphasized the need of a documentary index.

All documents, within the limits given below, have been included in this index. All those of any length and importance have been analyzed and the subject-matter indicated as fully as space would permit. The exact wording of the original title has seldom been used. Entries have been made under the various headings where a document covered more than one topic. For instance, Slacum's report of 1836 may be found not only under the author's name, but under the various subjects to which he gives attention, such as:

Agriculture. Oregon country;
Fort Vancouver;
Hudson's Bay Co.;
Oregon country. Joint occupancy;
Slacum's report.

The phrase "Oregon country," as is explained elsewhere, is used for all entries prior to 1853, when the first division of the country was made by the creation of Washington territory.

Two dates were possible in a majority of the documents: (1) The internal or historical date; (2) the official date of the document (that on which it was read and ordered printed by either the House or the Senate). Wherever possible, the internal date has been used as being, in a historical compilation of this kind, of greater value. Where there is but the official date, that has been given.

The index is arranged alphabetically by subjects. Under each subject the entries are arranged, (1) by year, and (2) by authors' names.

Authors must necessarily, in an analytical subject-index, be subordinated to the subject. In a long document, containing many reports and sub-reports, there may be from five to twenty-five signatures. For these reasons, only the most important author names have been selected and given, followed by the phrase "and others."

The period covered is from 1789 to 1881 and includes the following series:

American State Papers, 1789 to 1817.

Serially-numbered U. S. government documents, 1817 to 1881 (nos. 1 to 1984).

Annual reports of the U. S. National Museum, 1884 to 1904.

Annual reports of the Bureau of American Ethnology, 1880 to 1895.

U. S. Geographical and Geological Survey of the Rocky Mountain Region: contributions to North American ethnology. 1877 to 1893.

In scope, the intention was to cover history only, including as cross-references such reports on botany, or zoology, etc., as might be included in a historical report, such as Stevens' report of exploration for the Northern Pacific railroad; otherwise such subjects as zoology and botany have been omitted. Archaeology, under the sub-heading of Manners and customs, has been included where found in the documentary series above mentioned; but dictionaries of Indian languages, Indian myths and legends, etc., have been entirely omitted.

For the generous loan of documents not on our own shelves, thanks are due to the New York Public Library, the Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., the California State Library, at Sacramento, and to the library of the University of Washington.

The preparation of the index has been entrusted to Miss Katharine B. Judson, who has given her full time for nearly three years to the study of the history of the Old Oregon country, and who has also had the library training of the New York State Library School.

GEOGRAPHICAL DIVISIONS.

Oregon country, to 1853, comprised entire country west of the main range of the Rocky mountains to the Pacific ocean, and north of the present California boundary to an unknown and unsettled distance. Later the Americans claimed as far north as 54° 40′, while the British claimed as far south as the Columbia river. The boundary was settled, by the treaty of 1846, at 49° north latitude. The line from the main land through the Straits of San Juan de Fuca, by this treaty, was to be through the "main channel," and the San Juan controversy rose from the dispute between Great Britain and the United States as to which channel was the main channel, the one north, or the one south, of the island of San Juan.

Washington territory, created in 1853, comprised at first the present states of Idaho and also of Montana west of the Rocky mountains. For ten years, therefore, into the word Washington territory must be read also Idaho and Northwest Montana.

Idaho territory, created in 1863, comprised at first the present state and also Montana west of the Rocky mountains.

Montana was created a territory in 1864, made up in part of the eastern section of the Oregon country, and in part of the northern section of the Louisiana purchase.

	INDIANS. Wars. Nez Perces. The Nez Perces war of 1877-1878 was occasioned primarily by the failure of the United States to keep their treaty with a tribe which had always shown the utmost friendship for the whites. Promise after promise was broken, their reservation encroached upon gradually, until after the finding of gold on the Clearwater river, the whites practically took possession of the parts of the reservation they wished. Attacks were made by them upon the Indians, and the young Indian braves retaliated. This led to the open outbreak of the war, led by Chief Joseph, who as a "Dreamer," was influenced by his religion. INDIANS. Wars. Yakima.
	The Yakima war of 1855-1856 began with the Yakima and other tribes of eastern Washington and Oregon, and was occasioned chiefly by the influx of whites into the Indian country, and by the hastily made treaties of 1854-1855 which were not ratified by Congress. The Indians fulfilled their side of the treaties, but failed to receive anything in return. The war spread to the non-warlike Indians west of the Cascade mountains, especially around Puget Sound, and attacks were made on settlers and towns in that section. Many of the Sound tribes were neutral, but danger was apprehended from the head-hunting Indians of the north who came to the south end of Vancouver island, prepared for a general attack upon the whites and upon the friendly Indians of Puget Sound.

MAIL SERVICE.	Overland route. The overland mail, known at one period of its continuance as the "pony express" was the direct overland route from the Missouri river to Sacramento, Calif. Oregon mail was sent, in part, in that way, and held in San Francisco for the first northbound steamer. For this reason these entries, although belonging more to California than to Oregon history, are included. In later years, however, overland mail was routed from Salt Lake to the Columbia river.

	OREGON COUNTRY. This was known first as the "Northwest Coast of America," later as the "Oregon country," or as the "Columbia river region." In later years, after being divided into the present states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, and the northwest sections of Montana and Wyoming, it was referred to as "Old Oregon." It comprised all the territory west of the crest of the main range of the Rocky mountains to the Pacific ocean; and from 42°, then the northern boundary of Mexico, now of California, northward to an indeterminate distance. The Americans claimed northward to 54° 40′; the British claimed southward to the Columbia river. This gave rise to the boundary dispute. The Oregon country, broadly speaking, was thus a thousand miles from east to west, and a thousand miles from north to south.
